

Question File

- 1- You're in the desert, on a caravan journey northward, under a scorching sun and over 40 degrees temperatures. You come across an oasis where you stop to drink water and water the camels. Meanwhile, they fall asleep in the shade of the palm trees. When you wake up, you're alone with your camel. To look for the north, you watch your shadow. Are you guiding yourself using: the sun? The North Star? Or the compass?

- 2- In a school guiding event, each team is given a map and has to follow the clues at each checkpoint until they reach the finish line. Each team has an object that always points north and is used to guide themselves during the race. What is this object?

- 3- It's night. The sailors are in their caravels about to spend the night. A sailor asks his captain how they know if they are on the right course. The captain quickly points to the sky. Where is he pointing at?